

Each year thousands of school children visit Ka'ala Farm

Create new learning spaces at Ka'ala Farm

Thanks to generous community support, efforts are underway to rebuild Hale Na'auao.

The guiding theme for development at Ka'ala Farm is to create safe, intergenerational spaces for learning, cultural practice and healthy living. Ka'ala Farm, Inc. will continue to run educational, cultural and agricultural programs at the Cultural Learning Center, while expanding cultivated areas at the adjacent Community Farm. New facilities that are needed to support programs include a barn, field shelter, bath house, gathering space, and bunkhouse.

Please help us build.

Any contribution that you can make to this effort will go a long way. Monetary donations provided by you and other individuals and organizations will pay for materials, equipment, transportation, technical assistance, and nourishment for the many volunteers involved in building a safe and spiritual place for generations to come.

Mahalo to all who have supported us and Aloha 'Āina.

Rebuilding Hale Na'auao in July 2013

Ka'ala Farm is...

An ancient agricultural complex, restored and producing kalo as our ancestors did for centuries.

A Cultural Learning Center where learning comes alive for thousands of school children in our hands-on science program every year.

A cultural kīpuka where Hawaiian traditions are practiced daily to make people and communities stronger.

Long-Range Conceptual Plan

July 2013
